

Dear Friends,

We have been walking for Brain Cancer Research, now we are Bowling. Please join us for the Third Annual Sean Hunter Research In Action Walk Bowl on Sunday, March 1st, at Bowlmor Lanes in Santa Monica, CA. Net proceeds from the event will benefit Dr. Santosh Kesari's brain cancer research at the John Wayne Cancer Institute.

A big thank you to all of our donors, sponsors, volunteers and community members who helped to make last year's walk such a huge success! Together we raised a combined total of over $450,000 and as a result Dr. Kesari was able to accelerate the progress of several areas of clinical research for brain cancer, including doubling the enrollment of clinical trials from the prior year! So let's keep moving in this legacy of LOVE in honor of Sean and all those who are affected by brain cancer. Brain tumors are the most common cancer among children age 14 and younger, and are the leading cause of cancer-related deaths in the same age range.

Dr. Kesari is Chair and Professor of the Department of Translational Neuro-oncology and Neurotherapeutics at JWC. He is also a founding director of the Pacific Neuroscience Institute in Santa Monica, specializing in neuro-oncology. Dr. Kesari understands the urgency of improved response to therapy and is working to accelerate the development of novel therapies for brain cancer through drug innovations, immunotherapies and efficient trials. The only thing standing between these trials and the patients who need them is funding.

In September of 2014, my beautiful son, Sean, was diagnosed with an inoperable brain cancer. After 18 months of treatments, surgeries, radiation and chemo, doctors told my son to go home to hospice. I could not accept that for my child, so I found someone who would not either - Dr. Kesari. He used out-of-the-box therapies to treat Sean, and his partner, Dr. Dan Kelly, performed a debulking surgery that all other doctors had said was impossible. Together they gave Sean an additional precious year of life with his family and friends - time he would otherwise not have had. Dr. Kesari was there to fight with us, to give Sean hope when there was none. Sean passed away just weeks after the inaugural walk in 2017, but his legacy of LOVE lives on through family, friends and community members who continue to fight for a cure.

We've got brain cancer surrounded.

WE WERE WALKING. NOW WE'RE BOWLING.

Please join us for the Sean Hunter Research in Action Bowl on Sunday, March 1. This event was created by Sean's mother, Michele, together with family and friends, after Sean's diagnosis of an inoperable brain tumor at the age of 20. Net proceeds from the event benefit brain cancer research at the John Wayne Cancer Institute under the direction of Dr. Santosh Kesari. Dr. Kesari understands the urgency of improved response to therapy and is working to accelerate the development of novel therapies for brain cancer through drug innovations, immunotherapies and efficient trials. "The only thing standing between those trials and the patients who need them is funding," said Dr. Kesari. Sean passed away from brain cancer just weeks after the inaugural walk in 2017, but his legacy of LOVE lives on through family, friends, and community members who continue to fight for a cure. Let's keep moving in Sean's honor, and in honor of everyone affected by brain cancer. We hope you'll support our efforts by participating, donating, and helping to spread the word about this important cause.

Doctors told my son to go home to hospice. I couldn't accept that for my child, so I found someone who wouldn't either. Together, Dr. Kesari and Dr. Kelly were there to fight with us, to give Sean hope when there was none.
